Construction of 74,000-square-foot Ladue Branch to Commence in May

St. Louis County Library announced plans for a new library branch in Ladue to replace the current Headquarters building, located at 1640 S. Lindbergh Blvd. The project is part of a multi-year campaign to renovate or replace 19 branches within the Library District.

Library Headquarters will close to the public in late May. During construction, patrons will be directed to nearby SLCL locations where they can pick up holds and receive normal library service. A groundbreaking ceremony for the new branch will be held in summer 2022. The new library is expected to be completed in late 2023. The timeline is subject to change based on weather conditions and other factors.

The new Ladue Branch, which has not yet been named, will be a two-story, 74,000 square foot building with high windows, an outdoor courtyard and walking trail, a second-floor reading deck and a small-business center. Colorful spaces for children and teens will be upstairs, along with a Genealogy Center, sponsored by Emerson. Teens will have access to a high-tech creative space, sponsored by Object Computing, that includes a 3-D printer, a recording studio and green screen for videos. The Stephany and Richard Kniep Children’s Space will feature a large playhouse, along with other interactive learning activities for kids. The first floor will feature an event space for author events, programs, meetings and other special events, with seating up to 800.

Other amenities at the branch include 19 private study rooms, a quiet reading room, a computer lab, community meeting rooms, and comfortable seating.

“Libraries have changed since this building was built. We are a center of the community. It’s hard to do that in a building where you came in, checked out a book, someone shushed you, and you left. This new branch will be completely dedicated to patrons. It will be a more modern, spacious building that clearly celebrates the different patrons who use it.”

–Kristen Sorth, Director and CEO

The new Ladue Branch is designed by Lamar Johnson Collaborative. The budget is $22 million. The branch is the final project of the Your Library Renewed campaign. Details about the campaign can be found at www.slcl.org/your-library-renewed.
Note from the President

Brian Davies, Foundation Board President

Thankfully, spring is here. After the winter we endured, there’s lots of welcome warm news in this issue. First, 2022 is the 75th anniversary of the St. Louis County Library. It goes without saying that the tools and services of libraries have changed enormously to accommodate the complex needs and challenges of today. Besides being a source of books, information and entertainment, they now are also community centers that create a safe space with resources previously not available in libraries. From summer lunches for kids to sold-out events with bestselling authors, our programs are building a vibrant public library system, one reader at a time.

Check out the plans for the new Ladue branch as well as updates on in-person and virtual author events and recommended reads.

The Foundation board continues to add talented and committed individuals and we are saying farewell to three long-time library staffers upon their retirement. We are grateful to everyone involved in getting the legislation before the St. Louis County Council for a bill to provide ARPA money for the renewal of GrandPads for the current 1,500 county residents with the device and to expand the program to 1,500 additional residents.

The St. Louis County Library Foundation helps your local library do more. Please don’t forget us on May 5—annual Give STL Day. Our 2022 Fund the Need Week will be June 6–10. We’re making it easier to support us—donors can now set up monthly giving options electronically as well as one-time gifts.

As always, we thank you, our Friends and donors. Because of you, the St. Louis County Library is more than you imagined!

Favorite Author or Genre of Books? Mysteries and historical novels

Traditional book or eBook? Traditional book

Best part about the library? Close by, spacious, friendly staff, a great variety of programs and items to borrow especially with my little granddaughters now.

Author you enjoyed seeing as part of the Author Series and why? So many, but especially Charles Finch, C.J. Box, Dan Brown, Jonathan Drori. They all have a great sense of humor, energy and seem easy going.

What is the one classic novel you always meant to, but never got around to reading? There are none, I look forward to new ones.

If you could have dinner with one author dead or alive, who would it be and why? Would rather attend a library event to share questions. Food and eating are distracting!

What is one book you wish they would turn into a movie or one book that was better than the movie? No suggestions or critiques at this time. I am really enjoying “ATW in 80 days” and “All Creatures Great and Small on PBS.”

Best vacation you have ever taken and why? To the Far East in 1987. I always wanted to go there, and enjoyed the cultural change of the five countries I visited.

You lend one of your favorite books to a friend. They return the book with a cracked spine and dog-eared pages. Do you address the issue? Please select one answer.
• Who cares! It’s a Friend after all. (They must have really liked it!)
• No, I wouldn’t say anything, but it would annoy me all day.
• Yes, I would be upfront with my disappointment.
• Irrelevant, I would never lend a book.

Not only did you forget that book club is at your house, you didn’t even read the book. What do you do? Please select one answer.
• Don’t admit anything. Maybe no one will notice.
• Peruse the book club discussion questions to piece together a plotline.
• Admit it you haven’t read the book right out of the gate.
• Confess you haven’t read the book, but out another member of not reading the book as well.

He has worked in a variety of states for Kimberly-Clark for over 25 years in marketing, manufacturing and human resources before returning to live and work in St. Louis. He currently sits on several boards including 100 Black Men of America, 100 Black Men of Metropolitan St. Louis and Fathers and Families Support Center St. Louis.

Apollo Carey is a Member (Partner) of the Lewis Rice LLC in St. Louis where he practices corporate, transactional and regulatory law. He is also active in the St. Louis community, serving as the City Attorney for the City of Ferguson. Apollo teaches a class in issues in nonprofit management law at Washington University School of Law as an adjunct professor. Apollo also serves on additional nonprofit boards.
“Never trust a candy house!” exclaims a character in Jennifer Egan’s latest novel. Myths and fairy tales like Rumpelstiltskin, Hansel and Gretel, and King Midas all contain warnings on the theme of hidden costs of apparent good fortune. Similarly, Egan’s “The Candy House” offers a cautionary tale of a near future in which a product with the tagline “Own Your Unconscious” promises much but yields unexpected consequences.

In this imagined future, it is possible to download your memories and experiences externally to a device. Whenever needed, you can not only recall the day you met your spouse, but you can watch it and share it with others exactly how it happened. Many decide to upload all their experiences each day to a shared collective consciousness.

Things become complicated when the conclusions from a decades-old and largely ignored work of sociology are resurrected. A woman who spent years in an isolated tribal community where all members knew the histories of all other members wrote a book called Patterns of Affinity in which she introduces formulas for predicting human inclinations. She speculates that these formulas could theoretically be applied to modern societies, but the amount of personal information that would be required would be difficult to obtain. After all, people would be reluctant to share so much personal information.

The combination of complete access to a collective consciousness with algorithms predicting preferences is an opportunity for monetization and manipulation. Companies use what they can to maximize profits. One result is that entertainment has been broken down into mathematical formulas. “Counters” work to turn plot points into algebraic functions. One character working for a network creates formulas to determine the comparative dramatic punch of either throwing a drink in the face or whispering, “how dare you?”

When any utopia shows signs of dystopia, there are resisters. In the world of “The Candy House,” these are called eluders. Not only do these rebels refuse to add their experiences to the collective consciousness, but they also disappear. They work together to find privacy from the collective. Online proxies are used to camouflage their absence.

The twin daughters of the author of Patterns of Affinity are impressed with the promptness and accuracy of the proxy they suspect is responding to their text messages to their mother. Because a proxy has access to everything one has said digitally, imitating the “voice” is not difficult. Each request to get together is delayed with a claim of being too busy. Responses to texts and emails allow the girls to keep alive the diminishing belief that their mother has not disappeared. “Without an immediate expectation of seeing someone physically, it can take a while to be certain you’re dealing with a vacant identity.”

The allure of easy access to one’s own memory along with the memories of others is powerful. But in Egan’s novel, the mechanical recording of life leaves many feeling a loss.

When humans gather, they often talk about their shared experience. They tell stories they have heard many times before. What they are after is not a video-like accuracy in the retelling. Instead, they are creating. All those hazy memories, all that imperfect recollection creates the story that we are connected. We lived, and our lives intersected in a million little ways.

Fans of Jennifer Egan’s 2010 book “A Visit from the Goon Squad” will enjoy seeing some of the same characters from those interrelated stories navigating the imagined reality of “The Candy House.” This inventive novel offers readers much to think about, some laughs, and perhaps even a tiny bit of worry.

Past Library Technologies

by Ellen Mays, History & Genealogy

St. Louis County Library has utilized many different technologies over the years for processing, cataloging, and circulation. One unique item used by St. Louis County Library staff in the 1950s to print information on book pockets and catalog cards was the addressograph. First patented in 1896, the addressograph was an address and labeling system that helped make many library processes more efficient. Joseph S. Duncan, a bookkeeper who had grown tired of addressing mail by hand, wanted a faster and more efficient way of completing this task.

By 1910, the addressograph made it possible to reach 100,000 people by mail each month. Many new developments and changes occurred in the design. The addressograph of the 1960s was very different from the early models. The new models had a steel frame and keyboard that helped with stamping the address plates. The steel cassettes in which the steel plates were inserted looked a lot like library card catalogs of the time.

By the 1960s, copy machines replaced most of the addressographs. Many other technological advancements have occurred since the addressograph. As technology is constantly changing, there are sure to be many new technological advances at the St. Louis County Library.

SLCL Ranked 4-Stars by Library Journal

For the 8th year in a row, St. Louis County Library has been ranked as a 4-star library in the 2021 Library Journal Index of Public Library Service. SLCL is the only four star library in the St. Louis region. The rank of four stars indicates a high per capita use in five major areas of library service: library visits, circulation, program attendance, circulation of electronic material and public Internet computer use. The ranking is based on statistics from 2019, when SLCL circulated over 16 million items.

To create the index, public libraries are compared to others with similar annual expenditures and ranked accordingly. Star Library ratings of five, four, and three stars are awarded to libraries that generate the highest combined per capita outputs among their peers. SLCL received a four-star rating in the $30,000,000+ expenditure range.

The past two years have been a time of adjusting, adapting and transforming Library service to the community. Throughout the pandemic, SLCL has provided critical resources to the region, including distributing over 1.3 million drive-thru meals with Operation Food Search, providing emergency diapers and period supply kits from the St. Louis Area Diaper Bank, and issuing thousands of Chromebooks and Wi-Fi hotspots to area students to assist with virtual learning through the Digital Equity Initiative. SLCL is planning for the return of more traditional library services in 2022, as well as new projects, including:

- Adding social workers to assist individuals and families
- Hosting a regional storytelling festival
- Adding more items to our “library of things”
- Upgrading our bookmobile fleet

The Library Journal is a publication of the American Library Association.

Barbara Turkington, Assistant Director of Advancement, announced her retirement effective February 28, 2022. Barbara started working at the Library on November 1, 2011. During her tenure, Barbara has reenvisioned the St. Louis County Library Foundation Board. She worked closely with the Foundation to increase their goals, fundraising efforts and Friends of the Foundation.

Barbara oversaw the first Strategic Plan for the Foundation, which significantly raised the amount of support provided by the Foundation to the Library for programs and services. She also implemented a spring and fall appeal to solicit regular donations by mail. During her tenure, the Foundation created Alison Grants, which directly impacts public service by supporting innovative programs and pilots created by branch and Headquarter employees such as telescopes, sensory storytime, musical instruments, seed packets, MetroMarket stops, cooking programs, ACT prep, and many more.

In addition, under Barbara’s direction, the Foundation began its sponsorship and support of large Library programs including, but limited to Born to Read, Coding 101, Gift of Reading, and Excel online high school (previously COHS). Most recently, this has included COVID 19 projects, diapers and period supplies (in partnership with the St. Louis Area Diaper Bank), Playtime Learning Pads and Digital Equity Initiatives (consisting of hotspots and Chromebooks).

Barbara recognized and communicated the value of these programs to the Foundation. In addition to programs, Barbara has been the center of planning and implementation for all of the successful Foundation Galas from 2012 to present, which involved a new concept for the Library Foundation, a Food Truck event in 2021. These and other special events planned and implemented by Barbara and her team have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to support library programs and services. Barbara always makes sure these events are fun and classy but that comes with a large amount of work.

In a sea of hundreds of St. Louis galas, the Library Foundation’s Gala stands out every year as a must-attend event because of Barbara. And last, but certainly not least, Barbara has worked tirelessly to make sure that the Library’s amazing author event programs are world class. She has overseen the implementation of visits from Al Gore, Tan France, Madeleine Albright, Salmon Rushdie, Valerie Jarrett, C.J. Box, Roxane Gay, H.W. Brands, Louise Penny, Bernice King, and Amy Tan in addition to hundreds of smaller events.

Perhaps the most meaningful author event to me and Barbara was Jon Meacham. We were so overwhelmed upon meeting Jon, that he felt compelled to tell us that we needed to get ourselves together, so we would not embarrass ourselves and the Library! On a personal level, Barbara is first and foremost fun and hilarious, but also kind and caring. We are so happy for Barbara. We know that her husband Bill can say “well finally” about her retirement but we are going to miss her in a very big way and know that we will still see her at the author events!

Library Director and CEO Kristen Sorth, Pulitzer Prize-winning author Jon Meacham and Assistant Director of Advancement Barbara Turkington.

Marie Conlin

by Kristen Sorth, Director and CEO

Marie Conlin’s title as Library Planner does not adequately describe her accomplishments! Marie Conlin will be retiring from the Library after 31 years of service. When Marie and I were talking about her time here, she summarized her time by calling it her “Life’s Work” and I totally agree. Marie started with the Library on January 2, 1990 as a Professional II. A month later, she moved to Tesson Ferry as the Assistant Branch Manager.

At the end of 1990, Marie moved to Reference. Important to note is that our records do not list a title for her at that time because what she was about to accomplish was groundbreaking for SLCL. Her title eventually became Electronic Resources Librarian. At the time Marie moved into this position, there were zero electronic resources offered by the Library. In that role, Marie spearheaded and oversaw the very first acquisition of electronic resources for the Library. Her job involved finding, reviewing, purchasing and then training employees and patrons on electronic resources and databases. Marie was also here for the advent of the Internet at the Library. She was responsible for training both employees and the patrons on how to use the Internet!

In 1997, Marie moved to Administration and was once again tasked with creating something new as Library Planner. In this role, Marie would create the first Strategic Plan for the Library and would go on to create many more Strategic Plans by actively listening to the community. Her work on the Strategic Plan has steered the priorities of the Library for almost 25 years. Prior to Marie, the Library did not actively seek out and apply for grants. As another first for the Library, Marie took on this role and has successfully written over 300 grants and is responsible for the Library receiving over $3 million in grant funds!

Her role here goes beyond the titles and job descriptions. Marie is kind and caring and interested in people. She is an exceptional listener and never fails to remember an important milestone, birthday or celebration. Marie serves as a confidant and conscience to many and also happens to be an incredible editor but most of all is the true definition of a friend.

Scott Holl

By Emily Althoff, Public Services Administrator, Headquarters

We thank Scott Holl for his immense contributions to the genealogical world! Scott retired at the end of the year. Scott began working for the Library in 2007 as an Assistant Manager in Special Collections. He was promoted to Manager of the Special Collections in August of 2014. In September of 2014, he helped rebrand the department as the History & Genealogy Department.

Scott has received accolades from the Missouri State Genealogical Association (MoSGA) with a Certificate of Appreciation and the Filby Award for Genealogical Librarianship from the National Genealogical Society. He has helped to bring unique collections to SLCL during his tenure. Scott worked on the acquisition of the Lewis Rohrback collection from Switzerland and the Joy A. Reisinger Collection from Sparta, WI. Other collections acquired during his time at the library include the William C.E. and Bessie K. Becker collection and the Mary F. Berthold collection.

Scott was always looking for ways to reduce barriers and promote greater use of his department’s resources. He was successful in opening up Tier 4 for public access, has worked on digitization efforts to expand access to historical newspapers and most recently local yearbooks, saw the establishment of the very popular and heavily used electronic look-up form used world-wide, created the Family History Ambassador program for library employees, and has helped to usher in a vast amount of programming, including popular instructional videos with ever-increasing viewership. Scott was responsible for creating the first PastPorts issue in March 2008. This newsletter reaches email boxes across the world and continues to receive praise and appreciation for the helpful articles.

Scott has helped to elevate the status of the History & Genealogy Department during his 14 years here at SLCL. He is a knowledgeable and trusted figure in the Genealogy world and is sought out by members of the research community. He has truly been an asset to the library.
Grants Received

The library was awarded two grants totalling $10,450 in January 2022.

January
The Saigh Foundation provided $5,000 in grant funding to support literacy tutoring at SLCL. In partnership with Oasis Intergenerational Tutoring, older adults are paired with children in grades K-3 as their tutors, mentors, and friends. Tutors use a 6-step literacy approach that emphasizes improved speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Originally intended to be in-person tutoring, the service is currently offered virtually using Zoom.
